

Isthmus and Jamaica News.

The steamer Uncle Sam, at New York, brings Aspinwall dates to the 15th inst. Kingston to 18th.

The rainy season has just commenced on the isthmus, and passengers are now crossing by the Cruces road, as it is much the best during the wet weather.

The Yellow fever was prevalent at Kingston. It had been confined, thus far, mostly to the shipping, among which it was making sad havoc. But few of the old residents had died with the disease, those who are not acclimated being the first victims. Charles Perkins, late proprietor of the Union Hotel, at Gorgona, died with the fever on the 18th inst.

The difficulties between the Council and the Legislature had not been arranged.

A few days since the House met and declared Kingston a free port, which offended the governor very much. On the 19th, Sir Charles Govey, the governor of the island transmitted a speech, which gave so much dissatisfaction that one of the members, Mr. Burke, gave notice that he should move for a committee to request her Majesty to remove Sir Charles from the island. It was supposed that the governor would dissolve the House next day.

The Uncle Sam had $238,000 in gold dust on board.

The mail steamer Crescent City also arrived from Aspinwall. She brings the mails and passengers that San Francisco by the Pacific mail steamship company, on the 24th inst.

The Golden Gate arrived at Panama a few hours after the Isthmus, with mails, passengers and specie, to the 30th inst, having made the quickest run on record.

There were seven steamers at Aspinwall on the 14th—six American and one British.

Translations from the Dutchman.

One idea men are always tedious. A bore that talks nothing but Geology, is just as great a bore as the bore who talks nothing but horse.

One of the most tedious beings we ever got acquainted with was a Professor of one of our colleges. He would talk all day about the circulation of grasshoppers, and preach by the week on the germinal properties of a he-gemurian.

If you wish to make a good-looking girl take to intellectual pursuits, push her down stairs some day and break her nose. Beauty is a shocking enemy to books, & has no more taste for study than it has for wrinkles and cow-hide boots. As a general thing, girls don't take to Algebra till beaux cease to take to them.

Snobbery possesses an inquiring mind—always wants to know something about something. He is at present prosecuting the inquiry, "who will beat in the human race?" This is a question of great importance, and should gain the attention of our scientific men.

We are all fond of distinction—the scholar seeks it by his wit, and the ignoramus by the quantity of noise he can make. There is only one thing more full of sound than Independence Day, and that is a party of vulgarians bound on a sleigh-ride.

If eight men dig twelve days and find nothing how long must twenty-two men dig to find just double the amount? Answers containing remittances will be received till the mail closes.

There is a tight-rope dancer in San Francisco who offers to walk across the ocean, provided some body will chalk the equatorial line for him. Due notice will be given of the start.

Two men go fishing, one catches a biter and the other a nibble—the latter from a snafish, and the former from a mosquito went to know—which came out ahead?

TURKISH PROVERBS.—You will not sweeten your mouth by saying honey. Do good and throw it into the sea; if the fish know it not, the Lord will. If thy foe be as small as a gnat, fancy him as large as an elephant.

They who know most are the ofttest cheated. A man who weeps for every one will soon have lost his eye sight. Trust not to the wisdom of his turban; he bought the soap on credit.

Death is a black camel that kneels before every man's door. Good Report.—The following is from the pen of the celebrated Irish wit. Lord E. declared, in a large party, that a wife was only a tin canister tied to one's tail; upon which Lady E. was presented with the following lines:

"Lord E., at woman presuming to rail,
Calls a wife a tin canister tied to one's tail;
And fair Lady Anne, while the subject he carries on,
Seems hurt at his lordship's degrading comparison.

But wherefore degrading? Consider bright,
A canister's polished, and useful and bright;
And, shouldst thy original purity hide,
That's the fault of the puppy to whom it is tied."

EPICURUS.—His majesty King George I. made a present of books to the University of Cambridge soon after the commencement of the tumults at Oxford; on which occasion Dr. Trapp wrote the following epigram—
"Our royal master saw with heedful eyes
The wants of his two Universities;
Troops he to Oxford sent, as knowing why
That learned body wanted loyalty;
But books to Cambridge gave, as well discerning
That that right loyal body wanted learning."

This epigram received a retort from Sir William Brown, as it is said, impromptu:
"The King to Oxford sent a troop of horse,
For Tories knew no argument but force;
With equal care to Cambridge books he sent,
For Whigs allow no force but argument."

A Swedish peasant spoke contemptuously of the King—saying, I don't care a fig for Bernadotte. The peasant was arrested and under an ancient law of the kingdom, condemned to suffer death. But said the king to the judge, I do not like to be insulted, and therefore cannot let this man pass without some punishment, you will therefore, please go to his house and say to him, in my name, since you don't care a fig for Bernadotte, Bernadotte doesn't care a fig for you.

THE USE of a banister in the churches is a bare violation of the Sabbath.

Death from the want of Sleep.

How long can one live without sleep? This question we have never seen answered. But an authentic communication has been made to a British society, whose field of operations are in Asia, descriptive of a punishment which is peculiar to the original code of China. It appears from this communication, that the Chinese merchant had been convicted of murdering his wife, and was sentenced to die by being totally deprived of the privilege of going to sleep. This singular and painful mode of quitting an earthly existence was carried into execution at Amoy under the following circumstances:

The condemned was placed in prison under the care of three of the police guard, who relieved each other every alternate hour, and who prevented the prisoner from falling asleep for a single moment, night or day. He thus lived for sixteen days without enjoying any sleep. At the commencement of the 18th day his sufferings were so severe that he implored the authorities to grant him the blessed opportunity of being strangled, garroted, guillotined, burned to death, drowned, quartered, shot, blown up with gunpowder, or put to death in any conceivable way which their humanity or ferocity could invent. This will give us some idea of the horror of dying because you cannot go to sleep.

ET The saying, so often quoted, the school-master is abroad, originated with Lord Brougham. In one of his speeches it is thus introduced: Let the soldier be abroad if he will, he can do nothing in this age. There is another personage abroad—a person less imposing—in the eyes of some, perhaps, insignificant. The schoolmaster is abroad; and I trust to him, armed with his primer, against the soldier in full military array.

An exchange publishes the notice of the marriage of a couple respectively 83 and 89 years old, says: "We have often met with the expression 'a green old age,' but have never seen so striking an example of such a state as this must have been."

DOSE FOR.—A wag a few years since procured some eye-wash from a quack oculist in this city to be applied to a glass eye which he wore. The oculist, not being sharp-sighted, discovered some defect in the eye, but thought it so trifling that he warranted a cure or no pay. The wag took the wash and departed. In a week or so after he departed with the empty vial and apparently in great distress.

"Oh, doctor, doctor!" said he, "your stuff has wholly destroyed my eye!" at the same time opening the lid of the empty socket with his fingers, to the horror of the gaping and staring oculist.

"Is it possible? can it be possible?" exclaimed the eye-tinkerer. "I never knew my medicine to operate so before. Well, my dear sir, I can do nothing less than return your money."

"But you must do more, sir. What is five dollars to me compared with the loss of an eye?" replied the wag. "If you will give me two hundred dollars, I will sign a pledge never to expose you; but if you do not, I will prosecute you forthwith, and you are a ruined man."

The quack forked over a check for the amount and the corey cut sticks with a ps for Texas.—V. Y. Dutchman.

GREAT SPEED.—We have been informed that a locomotive, despatched from Liverpool to Chicago for Physicians to attend Mr. Doxter, ran the entire distance and back in one hour and forty minutes. The distance is 58 miles each way, making a distance of 119 miles in 100 minutes.
